

A NATIVE cottage like this was found by the Lewis and Clark party, in 1905, located on the east bank of the Willamette River, just above Wappatoo Island. It was apparently typical of many along the lower Columbia River, as well. The house was 30-feet long and 40-feet wide, was built of broad cedar boards and roofed with the bark of white cedar. —From "Wappato Indians," by the late Roy F. Jones.
